Radionuclides & de-Contaminations pRospects

I motivated movements and worked w numerous groups from veterans, to labor unions, to peace and Justice, to U-U's and onto Feminists. Basically

there is no "clean-ups fore and what onward" other than propaganda and rapprochements of NSDU-238 (not-so-depleted ur-238). That Ecosocialism

became the meeting points of contaminations and ecologic-Extent,

my field of social-Introspections went beyond "global-Village".

I had started that endeavor w Rev. Paul Sawyer and then, next w Dr. Carl Sagan.

We wirked me toward my field of scientific-Evaluation, but as w poly-Sci and physics I was not accepted at Cal Tech to entertain that field of endeavor there. I suggested to Carl that there was a need to know the fullest-Extent of post-Apocalyptic "demise" in terms of burn-offs of natural-Vegetation, especially, the coniferous forests that were being devoured in clear-cuts and hardly re-planted after forest-Fires.

He hailed me for inventing that specific on abstracting
"nuclear-Winter"

for the study that he and three others, Turco, Pollack, Ackerman

@ J.P.L. had completed by 1983- in Colorado. Dr. Sagan thanked me

while under house arrest at Oak Ridge, TN 1974 when I was protesting Y-14 and related that I had finesse'd, eventually, onto:

The Nuclear Winter...the book title. I was amazed he had such a vast recollection.

My other ventures were positing social-Prognostication thru en-voce` consciousness from 1971 last millennium thru today 2018 (next millennium).

Morose, I was the one who reported the A.W.O.L. of George Bush.

As I was en route to do a sampling in the holding ponds of Savannah River,
graphite, nuclear-Reactor. I was hailed by the Staff officer of the national-Guard in Alabama. I came back that way, and got admitted to sit for an hour and explained for another hour that being a part-time journalist

that I was also into researching topics of social-Purpose.
They handed me two typed military (government sheets) on the reasoning of George-Enron's 6-months non-reporting for duty/service.

I sent that onto Mr. Dan Rather at CBS in Manhattan where I was born. I felt honored that this report was made as I endeavored my best to note that I am sole-Survivor of two family surnames and not available for military-service, as well as having multiple physical, injuries. The colonel in charge granted me those records to do what he felt a citizen, might do better than him.

My travels w the Ecology group under auspice of Prof. Sam
Trull

were renown since they were in correlative relationship w foot-werk of National Geographic Society. This also widened my prospectus

in Soviet Union on the Vladimir Lenin nuclear-Reactors geographically located in Ukraines wetlands. I visited

6 total nuclear-Reserves to study what if anythinGy-Bop w a being accomplished there. Comparing nothing to all my visits of all major nuclear-Facilities in u.s.a.

I was wont not to let fellow-Boomers d-o-w-n as I 'd not allowed myself in doing that w Dr. Sagan @ JPL in 1969-70.

There are Many Humble Persons to

Meet or to Know

Starting w.o. an adversity, approximately 1059-1960, I found my anxiety did not forbid from making acquaintances, and therefore this one cased all there was that was w.i. conceptual gRasp to underscore as forwarding progress toward an upward movement. Here

I encountered upward as in direct conflict w upward "mobility" and choose instead, intellectual valuations of and for underscoring what NSDU-238 was and in reality has been secretized from the boomer-Generation

Therefore, as a gradient, I maintained we-Boomer's should stay as uppe-fRont as intellectually plausible, no. But by gRad

the catharsis seemed about the same i.e. not moderate at all.

Next, meeting professionals was also going to have to be profoundly professional. Was this socio-Associated or socialism-Universality

associated? What were the ramifications of Existentialism, came back,

hauntingly, as visits to Sausalito were not repercussions, but not backlash either.

sToRiEs intRo-bio-metRics of not DevaluIng accultuRalization

There are several affiRmatives, actual many scores of, that i am proud. Moreover, the most prominent oNes pRe-empt individualism and enjoin the social-Miasma of an aRticipation pRogResS i.e. forward HALT. BefRiending Professor caRl Sagan, in what I suggested to him as a sit-in student at Cal Tech Institute, in Pasadena CA, 1970—while amicably: following thru on re-Evaluations of NSDU-238 w “what is fullest extent of destruction in terms of human-SuRvivability”! Dr. Sagan thanked me, inside Oak Ridge Research Laboratory, in 1974, after a 26 hours detained hiatus w no one sandwich (food), to speak w him. Basically, he said, “you are the one to be thanked for the divulgence of ‘Nuclear Winter’ as the side that effects the planet most thru massive amounts released Radiation, radio-isotopic nucleides so assiduously ‘amassed’...”. That was 1974, or inclusively 1969 thru 1974.

Next was in 1972, passing the information that I personally received from a colonel in the Federal armed force, the Coast Guard on the indigent nature of one, George H. Bush, for being A.W.O.L. six full months, while not reporting on his whereabouts. I received a notification en route to Savannah River, that somethingGY-Bop may be awaiting. However, upon return dRiving same route in Van-1, yet. I was being steadfastly desired to stop and investigate a panoply. This was directed once inside the hangar's office of Air National Guard Station in Alabama, I was told of a dilemma in what the staff head, would like me to deliver in truth as being delivered, not told to me, in writing. I was aghast by the informative need, but asked not to read document—one full typed page until i'd left Alabama. This little I did. What eventuated was, that George-Enron was gone delinquent and had done such A.W.O.L. to his service sector. They were not bucolic, but embodying.

Leaving said question of negligence to a peer-person. I was elected, altho not in US Coast Guard. I drove into Texas and sought refuge in a town where vacate lots would not be bothered for a passer-by driving and stopping to sleep. The next two weeks I awaited my automatic deposit and had three stops to find a Xerox machine. The next step was Library and to decide to whom that the copy should be

Once you have a country you do not need an empire

What to do is bid get-rid-of: power-mongering and provide reparations for 20-millions people murdered by US-military, the new-Rome, our world's entropy w.o.
peace overtures ultra-Diabolical nation once a provider of principles and fond floundering not wanting to proceed furthering “democracy-as-purposeful”. However, what is needed to exude this method w.o. negating us peace-People? That is ‘peace’.

You may know, now that having spendt my whole Life w ‘the nuclear-Molecular’ dias-pora of social-Principle, that I would be done w getting-the-shoes-on and staying in shape physically. The power-Mongering trippe` of the new-Rome has not been covered, precisely as the concerns do relate were not replete formidableness correlation until reaching this point. Peace is not channeling technology into newer instruments to masse` annihilate another Vietnam, w hat of Iraq-Lands. Peace thru belligerence is wars w.o. end and ought be ended for reparations w closer to that no-end zone catharsis.

Point of fact toward forwarding world-Peace the UN-toward massive methane-Releases needs be molecularly ‘captured’ not molecularly captivating—in the lungs as cHem-tRails have been. And the technocrats and Oligarchs have too been overtly “imperialist against the we-People”. Does that mean the world’s socio-Politico’s will have to change the world back or in actually make the world stand-up and be people going forward like pawns not searching for brutality!

“But more important earth-threatening concerns revolve not around political ideologies nor celestial happenings; rather, the main concern may be one over which we have no control, yet may very well prove to be the most destructive of all.

In June of this year, two massive explosions occurred in Siberia. The explosions appear to have been the result of the exploding of methane-filled “pingos,” basically earth bubbles caused by the accumulation of methane gas. There have been additional explosions prior to this. The pingos, of which there currently appear to be over 7000 in the Russian tundra alone, seem to be a direct result of the thawing of the Siberian permafrost. As the frozen earth thaws because of global warming, decaying vegetation from millennia gone by begins to decompose into methane, or natural gas.

Additionally, the thawing and retreating of the Arctic ice sheet has allowed hundreds of methane gas plumes, some as long as a kilometer, to blow out from fissures in the sea floor beneath the previously frozen seas, to be absorbed in the ocean as methane hydrate. Oh yeah. This hydrate stuff can also explode and burn – burning ice, they call it.

Those familiar with the gases associated with climate change will recognize that methane, or natural gas, is about 30 times worse than carbon dioxide in producing the “greenhouse” environment.

Even as methane naturally decays, it produces carbon dioxide, that other villain in global warming.

And so more and more greenhouse gases are pumped into the atmosphere, which creates warmer and warmer temperatures, which thaws more and more of the permafrost, which continues the cycle. On August 23, a news bulletin declared that the Alaskan permafrost is now a point of concern.

More methane released increases the potential of a more volatile and flammable environment . Witness those two pingos in Siberia in June.

The folks who study these things speculate that these methane emissions are prone to be “non-gradual”– in other words they can be “massive and abrupt,” like the previous explosions in Siberia. They warn that a 50-gigaton eruption of a methane “burp” from the thawing Arctic permafrost beneath the Eastern Siberian Arctic Shelf is “highly possible at any time.” By means of comparison, the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima was 15 kilotons. It is a ticking time bomb.

You get the idea...

Again, it is time for the global corporations to reinvest back into the global market they created, back into the neighborhoods they profited from, back to the workers they stole from, and back to the world they have ecologically damaged in the first place.”[\[1\]](#)

One knows that having a corporate market-Winthrope condition means capitalist-Totality takeover: technology of murderous, planet “ecology-Demising constant” w.o. reproof of what was spent and where spent and when NSDU-238 and when and how-much-that-was by weight. Those are wars-Warring is bases established to ameliorate the principles of greediness is corporate takeover as well as military backup to maintain belligerencies and water usages for manufacturing and those military-Bases. Monopoly and greed go hand-in-hand. The facts are we-the-People are upset w that lacking principle for us-to-have-to-pay-and-to-serve and not to have meagre Medicare-for-all.

Point world-Peace toward massive methane-Releases need a mutual-Defense not an-other arms-Race multiple nations build-up of arms but of scientific-Reproof to enterprise manufacturing, by nature-Realizing, those methane-Molecules and apprising a Liquid Natural Gas phool from one-step Refining. Thus, we'd be reducing “fracturing-Enterprise” raking-in billions-dollars from “oil-extracts” anyhow. Of course, I'd allot that the Tax them 90% until the project is accomplished to really protect our air, bought-Holds. The will of the world's people holding onto prospects and principles of peace need to take control of industry apprising manufacturing of methane-Phooels into transport phooels. And to imprisoning" the oligarchs that held us back in 1973 or since then?

"The national security state dominates US foreign policy and now increasingly domestic policy. It has become a behemoth, a monster with an insatiable appetite that both looks for opportunities to expand and creates reasons to justify its expansion. Driven largely by profit and geopolitical positioning to control the world's resources, the national security state may finally be overreaching to the point that people are seeing through the myth of "they hate us for our freedom" and realizing that we are all being duped.

The United States is stuck in a cycle that it created by decades of military intervention, war and economic hegemony. This has created a self-fulfilling prophecy of growing insecurity that fuels the demand for more security. As real and perceived threats against US security result in a national security response of more military, more spying and more intervention, the consistent response abroad is more threats to the security of Americans and attacks on the US military and transnational US corporations. Reaction by the United States is inevitably more security state violence. And the cycle continues to spiral.

Real feelings of insecurity have been used to scare people in the United States into accepting the growing erosion of our civil liberties. We are taught to treat each other as potential terrorists and to be on the lookout for threats. We are accustomed to being complicit with gross invasions of our privacy as a trade-off for greater “security.” But this is an illusion, as is the idea that if someone is not doing anything wrong, then this state of hyper[-]vigilance doesn’t affect them.

Now these illusions are being exposed. Four years ago, Pfc. Bradley Manning was arrested for leaking documents on the wars and US foreign policy that showed crimes, unethical behavior and abuses of power. The government reacted harshly, held him in solitary for one year and sought to make an example of him to frighten others from coming forward. These actions showed how the government will abuse its power to cover up its own misbehavior. But rather than deter, this abuse has led to more leaks.

As Glenn Greenwald writes, “The more they overreact to measures of accountability and transparency – the more they so flagrantly abuse their power of secrecy and investigations and prosecutions – the more quickly that backlash will arrive.” In the more than three years since Manning’s arrest, there have been multiple leaks, including perhaps the most important, the recent leaks by Edward Snowden. Intimidation is not working.

And the national dialogue is changing. Just as these whistle[-]blowers had hoped, people are questioning whether the national security state is justified and just whose interests it represents. Coalitions of organizations are forming to demand greater transparency and accountability, and serious questions are being asked ab-out the effects of a privatized security state on democracy and the broader interests of the public.” [\[2\]](#)

World peace is not ‘gun for conundrum’ but rather discussion on offensive-Vectors. Fore-instance, Taiwan being protected by US-navy, and South Korea being protected by US-military forces in Japan, which is Japan's defense. There are 50,000 military personnel being paid for daily wake-up calls in Japan and have been there since 1945. That is the conundrum not the peace-Proposal? Once again, the power-mongering has made both government and majority people w pulses of neurotic and psychopathic, for that matter egregiousness that parvenu's Conditionalized responses as though military were in charge altho plutocrats/Oligarchs are. They have done the same as the red-Chinese w the nationalist-Chinese, those who reside on Taiwan and who have built a country predicted upon democracy moreso that obviated-Capitalism which the US-coRpoRations have been doing. The tumult and anarchist-Presidents comes from obviated chaos that they thrive to have as penury ladder of descending laws, truths, history, educational standards and learning. The uniqueness of despair is all that is lacking. Morosely, their masochism does not exits until excuses needs be made—also once again.

Do we need “vectors-for-wars-Warring” or do we need defense for our planet, def-ense for-each-of-us, and Medicare for ourselves to best participate as the fore-most 'english-Speaking nation' albeit dunce rogue-empire. Or do we need-to-go-forward and throw all those waylaid racists who are anti-anybody anarchists?

“The Dangerous National Security Spiral

Wars and military interventions occur out of the Office of the President, which has become an imperial presidency that does not wait for Congressional or UN approval. Fred Branfman, who exposed the illegal bombing of Laos and the targeting of civilians by the United States during the Vietnam War, says that since 1962, the United States has killed 20 million human beings, the vast majority of them civilians, more than any other country in the world during that time period.

This mass slaughter of people, and the displacement of an equal number who were forced to flee their homes and often their countries, continues no matter who is president. No doubt part of the problem is the mirage democracy and managed elections in the United States which limit our choices, but the bigger problem is the institution of the executive branch, the vast military and intelligence apparatus, and ongoing foreign policy that emphasizes intervention and domination rather than diplomacy. These institutional forces need to be changed if we are to have any hope of redirecting US relations with the world.

Branfman describes part of the dangerous cycle of the national security state: "And today's U.S. executive branch policies pose an even greater long-term threat to U.S. strategic interests, not only abroad but at home. The evidence is overwhelming, including the statements by several dozen U.S. national security experts cited at the end of my recent piece, that U.S. leaders are not protecting national security but rather weakening it as never before."

They are weakening security by creating more enemies every day. Branfman points out that the Joint Strategic Operations Command (JSOC), essentially a team of assassins operating on a global scale, is active in 60 countries. Obama has used drones in many countries, most with which the United States is not at war. This remote-control policing of the globe is increasing hatred against the United States. A 2011 Pew poll shows 74 percent of Pakistanis, 130 million people, regard us as their enemy. Branfman points out, "It makes no national security

with 1.8 billion Muslims.”[\[3\]](#)

As I've said above: makes no sense to be neurotic unless trying to make excuses. The Branfman disclosure to beat war w 1.8 billion Muslims, was not holiness but wholesome-ness-Lacking equals diabolicalness, again. Getting intifada to react to christian immorality is not psychopathic but psycho-phenomical as in phenomenology is not Existentialist theorizing. One's insecurity is not a state of mind, was the hope that law were useless to those egalomaniacs. Now, the we-People have a police-State of meniality as state-of-Mind. Will we never get to “defense”? Branfman is correct. The masochist attitude he did not mention because 99.9 % of the Muslims rely on faith w leadership to a greater extent is all the so-called 'west' can allot. Those are not allusions, in other word is not good enough or we-socialist either. The basics of surrender we “do not know, but we do care immensely”.

The u.s.a. leadership yet makes MLK Jr.'s words a true-Disparagement of factuality for Human Rights and freedom w liberty. He said, “the U.S. is the greatest purveyor of violence the world has ever seen”. This unfortunately for planet and Ecosocialism is continuing, and ought dispel the plutocrats from living w.o. being behind prison's razor-Wire fencing. When do we get rid of those wars purposefully causing millions of refugees into Turkey, millions into Jordan, millions into where do refugees from Yemen go—not allowed into Oman, and Saudi's bomb them from us-Military supplied war-Planes? These militia's paid for by US, Saudi's, U.A.E. others have supported al Qaeda to ISIL which-is-now-facing-off w terrorism of taliban-Hats. The people of u.s.a. do not need our acculturation processes ruined for a police-State, and intel-State (deep-State), a US military w black-Ops and dia-bolicalness for excess against freedom and democracy.

“Numerous officials have made similar points; retired General Stanley McChrystal says every civilian the US kills creates ten enemies. Who are these security-state-created enemies? The tens of thousands families, friends and neighbors of people killed in drone strikes or held without trial in Guantanamo Bay or other secret prisons. They include the vast numbers of people under drone surveillance and threat of attack in numerous countries in Africa, the Middle East and East Asia. Also, this includes the people threatened with full-blown war as the United States moves from the destruction of Iraq to Afghanistan to Libya and now to Syria, with Iran and North Korea in its sight and under threat, and even China being encircled militarily in Obama's Asian pivot. The undermining of democracies throughout the world adds to the problem, especially in Venezuela, Ecuador and Bolivia, countries that have broken from US empire. The United States does not become more secure by turning the people of the world against us.

As a result of this ongoing policy of intervention and domination, the US security state apparatus has grown dramatically. This security state includes not only government agencies but thousands of corporations that are hard to distinguish from the government. The merger of corporations and state is evident in the intelligence gathering apparatus, each entity sharing information with the other. For example, a recent leak from Edward Snowden on British intelligence's seizure of virtually every worldwide phone call and Internet activity, reveals that it shares the information with 850,000 outside contractors, as well as the NSA.

There are important legal and moral issues that challenge all of these policies, but Branfman points out, the security state apparatus is "also endangering us, undermining security and creating enemies." Further, "It is our government that is endangering our national security, not the whistleblowers."

The security state is becoming more insecure itself as people in the United States learn about the extent of domestic and global spying. This creates a potentially volatile situation. Branfman says that "No president has done more to create the infrastructure for a possible future police-state" than President Obama. Branfman sees three ways that this infrastructure could be used to escalate to a full police state that would destroy our democratic ideals: (1) another 9/11 type attack, (2) domestic unrest due to the economic collapse and growing inequality; and (3) global disruption due to climate change. These are all very real possibilities and one interesting thing about each – current government policy not only fails to solve or minimize these problems, it actually makes each worse." [\[4\]](#)

What each american needs to know is to do, assertive-Thinking. That means programming oneself, to hold americanism to heart and to be kept in the mindscape of how we perform as a wholesome-Body, w capabilities of collectivism that we shall not forget. This means knowing more about Socialist International dates and what happens in a shootout by police-State of consequence those actions, there results and what was lacking in homogeneity. That is what these illegal wars-Warrings are. An illegal amalgamation of police-state against we-People who are abjuring needs to do themselves rightly, forthrightly, as the facts that are not ambiguous are. wRite a letter to whom?

The women who do love u.s.a. seem too contented, that is not to have discretion bet-wixt evil-Discivility and evil-Empire. What's hardship is that vanguards do not exist for any more than lacking-Defense structure, of which nonsense paying into Medicare (not includ-ing dental-Care) for forty-five fookering years is not helping Ecology nor healthcare im-mediacy. Needs like right away: now! The mean suppositioning has entropy built-in as Condtionalism is not for all, this is a taskful bias, not really a means. When neo-Liberalist-Banking plutocracy, wars-Warring galore is knocking the americanism that is a glue against spiteful-Excesses, then we-Amers need to support global-Village assertiveness for anti-Conditionalism and pro-Americanism.

"The National Security State Used Against Americans

Thomas Drake, a former executive of the National Security Agency who became a whistleblower and was accused of violating the Espionage Act says, "We have all become foreigners, all subjects of the surveillance state" and it has "really very little to do with counter-terrorism." Further, the security apparatus is "treating the United States as a foreign nation" consistent with the Obama administration's claim that the whole world is a battlefield, and that includes the United

Drake points out that he and his colleagues in the NSA showed the agency how it could collect the data it needed to protect the United States from its enemies, while at the same time operating within the limits of the Constitution, consistent with the Fourth Amendment and protecting the privacy of Americans. But, the NSA rejected that approach and instead “because of a perverse incentive to keep track of everyone,” gathered all information so that they would have it in case they needed it at a later date. According to Drake, the “NSA wants to own the Internet.”

An East German expert, Drake says “the Stasi would be drooling at what the US surveillance state is doing” with their collection of information. The full review of how Americans are spied on is breathtaking. There is so much information being gathered that the NSA is building a data facility in Utah that will use as much energy as Salt Lake City to hold 100 years’ worth of worldwide communications, including phone and Internet communications. The surveillance state has been building relatively consistently for 100 years. With every advance in technology; the surveillance state has expanded to use that technology.”[\[5\]](#)

Where justice is due, is never served, and hardly at all remonstrated, un-less for purposeful lies/lying. Thus, plutocracy is served. The "system" remains a paradox to the need of freedom, not to subservience. Justice abiding is not subservient, in other words.

AMY GOODMAN: I wanted to ask you about this comment that you made that the Republican Party, you said, is the most dangerous organization in world history. Can you explain?

NOAM CHOMSKY: I also said that it's an extremely outrageous statement. But the question is whether it's true. I mean, has there ever been an organization in human history that is dedicated, with such commitment, to the destruction of organized human life on Earth? Not that I'm aware of. Is the Republican organizati-on—I hesitate to call it a party-committed to that? Overwhelmingly. There isn't even any question about it.

Take a look at the last primary campaign—plenty of publicity, very little comment on the most significant fact. Every single candidate either denied that what is happening is happening—namely, serious move towards environmental catastrophe—or there were a couple of moderates, so-called—Jeb Bush, who said, “Maybe it’s happening. We really don’t know. But it doesn’t matter, because fracking is working fine, so we can get more fossil fuels.” Then there was the guy who was called the adult in the room, John Kasich, the one person who said, “Yes, it’s true. Global warming’s going on. But it doesn’t matter.” He’s the governor of Ohio. “In Ohio, we’re going to go on using coal for energy, and we’re not going to apologize for it.” So that’s 100 percent commitment to racing towards disaster.

Then take a look at what’s happened since. The—November 8th was the election. There was, as most of you know, I’m sure, a very important conference underway in Morocco, Marrakech, Morocco. Almost roughly 200 countries at the United Nations-sponsored conference, which was—the goal of which was to put some specific commitments into the verbal agreements that were reached at Paris in December 2015, the preceding international conference on global warming. The Paris conference did intend to reach a verifiable treaty, but they couldn’t, because of the most dangerous organization in human history. The Republican Congress would not accept any commitments, so therefore the world was left with verbal promises, but no commitments. Well, last November 8th, they were going to try to carry that forward. On November 8th, in fact, there was a report by the World Meteorological Organization, a very dire analysis of the state of the environment and the likely prospects, also pointed out that we’re coming perilously close to the tipping point, where—which was the goal of the—the goal of the Paris negotiations was to keep things below that—coming very close to it, and other ominous predictions. At that point, the conference pretty much stopped, because the news came in about the election.

And it turns out that the most powerful country in human history, the richest, most powerful, most influential, the leader of the free world, has just decided not only not to support the efforts, but actively to undermine them. So there's the whole world on one side, literally, at least trying to do something or other, not enough maybe, although some places are going pretty far, like Denmark, couple of others; and on the other side, in splendid isolation, is the country led by the most dangerous organization in human history, which is saying, "We're not part of this. In fact, we're going to try to undermine it." We're going to maximize the use of fossil fuels—could carry us past the tipping point. We're not going to provide funding for—as committed in Paris, to developing countries that are trying to do something about the climate problems. We're going to dismantle regulations that retard the impact, the devastating impact, of production of carbon dioxide and, in fact, other dangerous gases—methane, others." [\[6\]](#)

“And there are further concerns. There has been—the White House did put out a careful—you know, a justification, an intelligence report, to explain and account for, showing why they had absolute confidence that it was a Syrian government attack. This was analyzed closely by a very serious and credible analyst, Theodore Postol, professor at MIT, who has a long record of highly successful, credible analysis. He’s a highly regarded strategic analyst and intelligence analyst. And he gave a pretty devastating critique of the White House report. You might—you can pick it up online and take a look at it. So there certainly are some questions.

That there’s—that Syria is capable of a monstrous act like that, the Syrian government, that much is not in doubt. But one question that arises is: Before doing something, could you find out what happened? OK? I mean, let’s have an inquiry, take a look and see what in fact actually happened. There are plenty of cases where things—where it looked as though things happened, but they didn’t. And remember that reporting from Syria is extremely difficult. If reporters go into the rebel-held areas and don’t do what they’re told, you know, get your head cut off. Patrick Cockburn and others have written about this. You just can’t seriously report from those areas. There are obvious questions when you’re reporting from the government side. So the reporters are—there are very good reporters doing a serious, courageous job, but there’s not much you can do. So we just don’t know a lot. Well, those are the circumstances in which the 59 Tomahawk missiles were launched. That’s pretty easy. It’s easy to sit in Washington and push a button and say, “Go kill somebody.” That’s considered courage, you know, macho, showing how strong we are.

What did they actually do? Well, apparently, the Tomahawk missiles were targeting a part of the airfield that doesn’t seem to be used. And, in fact, the next day, planes were taking off. And, in fact, the village that was attacked by the chemical weapons has been even more heavily attacked by straight bombing from the Assad government after the 59 Tomahawk missiles. So whatever they were intended to do doesn't seem to have anything to do with Syria. I suspect that what they were in-tended to do was pretty much what you described, to shore up Trump's image as—I think it was Nikki Haley at the U.N., said, "There's a new sheriff in town." So now we've got Wyatt Earp, you know, pulling out his gun and getting rid of the bad guys. No more of this soft stuff. So, it was probably an attempt to shore up that image.

Pretty much like the bomb in Afghanistan. Nobody knows what it was for, what it had to do with. Probably destroyed a large part of Afghanistan. Shortly after that, there was a mass—an incredibly brutal and successful Taliban attack, which killed a couple hundred recruits, most of them unarmed. The young draftees didn't know what they were doing. It was so bad, the defense minister resigned. Doesn't seem to have any effect on—it was supposedly aimed at ISIS. Maybe it was. Maybe it was-n't. They don't seem to be affected by it.

So these look like—there doesn't seem to be any strategic analysis behind any of these actions, as far as anyone can tell. They seem like kind of about at the level of the twitters that keep coming out: something that kind of occurs to me, so why not do it? It's cheap. It may kill a lot of people, makes me look good and, you know, makes it seem as if I'm defending the country, and so on. It's hard to see it as any-thing but that. That these things help the people of Syria and Iraq is very hard to imagine." [\[7\]](#)

"In response to your enquiry on the article "US Navy to be sued for depleted uranium use on Caribbean island", the following are some of the sources from which I both quoted and consulted for information.

A February 5 article on the 'Vieques Libre Homepage', by Carmelo Ruiz-Marrero entitled "Vieques Residents Alarmed by Depleted Uranium Reports", states:

"According to a study carried out by the Puerto Rico Health Department, the cancer rate in Vieques is 26.9 percent above Puerto Rico's average. The study, which covered the years 1990-94, says nothing about the possible causes of this unusually high cancer rate. But the navy's opponents are certain that military activities on the island, including target practice with DU munitions, are to blame.

"Doctor Rafael Rivera-Castaño, who lives in Vieques, believes that the PR Health Department cancer study's data are already somewhat dated, and that the current cancer rate in Vieques is even higher. 'I estimate that the cancer rate here is now 52 percent over the Puerto Rico average,' he said in an interview."

A January 23 article on the same site, "Depleted Uranium (Uranium-238) and Vieques", by Mary Anne Grady Flores, states:

"The Viequenses live with the highest cancer rate in all of Puerto Rico, with 26 percent higher than the main island. Ironically, there is no hospital on the "isla nena," the little girl island, and Viequenses have to take a ferry, a one and a half hour ride, to the town of Fajardo, on the main island of Puerto Rico for treatment. Babies are born on the main island, so records of birth defects are not connected with Vieques. Oddly enough the Navy has been collecting medical data from the people in Vieques for years. A 58 year old Viequenses woman named Mimita told me that for years the Navy would draw her blood and others but never gave the people the results."

And from a link 'The legacy of the US Navy':

"The people of Vieques suffer from high levels of cancer and other serious health problems. Studies carried out by the Puerto Rico Department of Health have shown that from 1985 to 1989 the rate of cancer in Vieques rose to 26 percent above the rest of PR. Rafael Rivera-Castaño, a retired professor from the University of Puerto Rico's Medical Sciences Campus, has documented an increase in extremely rare diseases, like, for example, Scleroderma, lupus, thyroid deficiencies, and not-so-rare ones, like asthma, which is significantly affecting Vieques' children. 'How can the children of Vieques get asthma if this is such a small island? The winds that blow in from the ocean are rich in iodine, which prevents asthma. The only possible cause is air pollution. We don't have factories here, the only source of air pollution here is the Navy,' he has stated."

The cancer increase on Vieques was also the subject of a BBC News article on February 4, "Cancer surge on bomb range island". The piece states:

"More than a third of the 9,000 inhabitants of Vieques have been found to be suffering from a range of serious illnesses and cancers, which doctors have linked to decades of bombing by the US and the military of other countries including the British Royal Navy.

I hope the above has been helpful to you.

...We are after all discussing a region that has fallen under direct US military dominance for the past six decades—and under US influence for over a century. US involvement in Puerto Rico has been intimately bound up with the Americas' role in the great events of the 20th century. The effective seizure of Vieques island by the US and the forced relocation of its inhabitants were carried out on the pretext of preparation for World War Two. In the decades that followed the war, with the emergence of the Cold War, the US always argued its continued military presence was due to reasons of "national security".[\[8\]](#)

When I found-out that NSDU-238 has the longest Half-Life of all Radionuclides, the concerns were hair-Raising. Not shackled to propaganda of ur-238, I may as well add. Being anti-War is that the police-State is corralling people's spirits and the generalities are propagated by doing such encircling and brutalizing.

The anti-Wars was not merely rhetoric. What a waste of time that would be? Why did the beat-Bohemians delve into space-Time anyhow? Those concerns are already anti-Nuc-learist for those of us who started in the 1950's as anti-Bomb and now have added anti-NSDU-238 plus, since Sept. 11th 2001 (or shortly thereafter when the cobwebs of more deceits for lies-of-Misperceptions need not exude, but "Directed energy Weapons "all utilize Radio-isotopes formulations in various ways of boosting ionizing and direction.

"OK. So the conference kind of pretty much came to a halt. The question—it continued, but the question was: Can we salvage something from this wreckage? And pretty amazingly, the countries of the world were looking for salvation to a different country: China. Here we have a world looking for salvation to China, of all places, when the United States is the wrecking machine that's threatening destruction, in—with all three branches of government in the hands of the most dangerous organization in human history.

And I don't have to go through what's happened since, but the—in general, the Cabinet appointments are designed to—assigned to people whose commitment and beliefs are that it's necessary to destroy everything in their department that could be of any use to human beings and wouldn't just increase profits and power. And they're doing it very systematically, one after another. EPA, Environmental Protection Agency, has been very sharply cut. Actually, the main department that's concerned with environmental issues is the Department of Energy, which also had very sharp cuts, particularly in the environment-related programs. In fact, there's even a ban on posting and publishing information and material about this.

And this is not just at the national level. The Republican Party, whatever you want to call it, has been doing this at every level. So, in North Carolina, a couple of years ago, where the Legislature, mostly thanks to gerrymandering, is in the hands of the Republicans, there was a study. They called for a study on the effect of sea level rise—on what sea level rise might be on the North Carolina coast. And there was a serious scientific study, which predicted, in not—I forget how many years—not a long time, about roughly a meter rise in sea level, which could be devastating to eastern North Carolina. And the Legislature did react, namely, by passing legislation to ban any actions or even discussion that might have to do with climate change. Actually, the best comment of this—I wish I could quote it verbatim—was by Stephen Colbert, who said, "If you have a serious problem, the way to deal with it is to legislate that it doesn't exist. Problem solved." You know, this is going on all over the country." [\[9\]](#)

This is what I've defined as diabolical capitalist-totalitarianism of Conditionalism, the pert point of view, that they want all the methane that can be released—order of close-to-that defect—affects us all. They're the affliction, however. Imperialist, neo-Liberalist bank-ing and egregiousness forwarding wars-Warring is not precocious venturing into national-ism, UN-necessarily for propaganda-Sake. The egregious polemic was a problem of vector-ng, nonetheless. That Pakistan could or would control Afghanistan pre-emptying trade w u.s.a. or being left to grow their own concerns for and of women's rights. Not ONLY do we-Amers eat too much hormonal chickens, but that H. Kissinger set-up both in Tehran and in Karachi, meetings between americans (himself in 1979, Pakistan) and w gHW BUshwhacky 1978 Tehran and 1979 Cairo. These participatory foreign-Policy formulations were and re-main the need to contain as Defense. No. They were needs of imperialism to make control thru compromiso's that constrain democracy. That could not be done in Taiwan. That again and again cannot be done in separationist Korea's.

Removing military-Bases in these concerns, now is a power-Mongering "grab-Correlationist" entries secluded for coRpoRations, excluding u.s.a. diplomatic coRps and the state-Dept, too. First the we-People need "defense" from the methane-Releases plausibilities. Secondly from all-Radionuclides. Thirdly from impacts that the whole of governments on planet must be assuaged and concerned for concerted amalgamated interests, nor for dictatorial interests and US-military bases building constructionism. That is merely Conditionalism—the former, above. Again, the US, Ohh-bom-bah-bin-dingy admin should never have allowed Sec. State Clinton to make overtures to sell $80 billion worth armaments to Saud's because they could have curtailed the dictatorial methods of madness thru wars-Warring always being messianism of US-military, but w.o. diplomacy as though diplomacy was not a white summer dress w red and blue trim in the midst of bloodletting from colonialist past to imperialist present. “Due to a historic data-dump on December 10th, the biggest swindle that oc-curred in the 20th Century (or perhaps ever) is now proven as a historical fact; and this swindle was done by the U.S. Government, against the Government and people of Russia, and it continues today and keeps getting worse under every U.S. Presi-dent. It was secretly started by U.S. President George Herbert Walker Bush on the night of 24 February 1990; and, unless it becomes publicly recognized and repudi-ated so that it can stop, a nuclear war between the U.S. and all of NATO on one side, versus Russia on the other, is inevitable unless Russia capitulates before then, which would be vastly less likely than such a world-ending nuclear war now is.

This swindle has finally been displayed beyond question, by this, the first-ever complete release of the evidence. It demonstrates beyond any reasonable doubt (as you'll verify yourself from the evidence here), that U.S. President G.H.W. Bush (and his team) lied through their teeth to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev (and his team) to end the Cold War on Russia's side, when the U.S. team were secretly determined never to end it on the U.S.-and-NATO side until Russia itself is conquered. And this swindle continues today, and keeps getting worse and worse for Russians.

Until now, apologists for the U.S.-Government side have been able to get away with various lies about these lies, such as that there weren't any, and that Gorbachev didn't really think that the NATO issue was terribly important for Russia's future national security anyway, and that the only limitation upon NATO's future expansion that was discussed during the negotiations to end the Cold War concerned NATO not expanding itself eastward (i.e., closer to Russia) within Germany, not going beyond the then-existing dividing-line between West and East Germany – that no restriction against other east-bloc (Soviet-allied) nations ever being admitted into NATO was discussed, at all. The now-standard U.S. excuse that the deal concerned only Germany and not all of Europe is now conclusively disproven by the biggest single data-dump ever released about those negotiations.”[\[10\]](#)

“This release on December 10th, by the National Security Archives, of a treasure-trove of all the existing documentation – 33 key documents – that's been made available to them from numerous archives around the world, and brought together finally for the very first time complete and in chronological order, makes crystal clear that the American apologists' lies about the lies WERE lies, not accurate accounts of the history, at all.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist administers the Presidential Oath of Office to George H.W. Bush during Inaugural ceremonies at the United States Capitol, January 20, 1989 (Source:

Wikimedia Commons)

The assemblers at the National Security Archives assume that the numerous and repeated false promises that were made by Bush's team were mistakes, instead of as what they so clearly were (but you'll judge it here for yourself): strategic lies that were essential to Bush's goal of America ultimately conquering a future isolated Russia that would then have little-to-no foreign allies, and all of whose then-exist-ing-as-Soviet allied nations within the Soviet Union itself, and beyond, including all of its former Warsaw Pact allies, would have become ultimately swallowed up by the U.S.-NATO bloc, which then would be able to dictate, to a finally alone nation of Russia, terms of Russia's ultimate surrender to the U.S. That view (which the Nation-al Security Archives documents to be clearly true, even as it denies it and says that only Bill Clinton and subsequent Presidents were to blame) is now exposed irrefutably to have been the U.S. plan ever since GHW Bush's Presidency.

In other words: This release of documents about the turning-point, provides capstone evidence that the U.S. never really had been in the Cold War against communism; the U.S. was instead aiming ultimately to be the imperial nation, controlling the entire planet. For America's Deep State, or what President Eisenhower famously warned about as the "military-industrial complex," the Cold War was actually about empire, and about conquest, not really about ideology at all. This also had been shown, for example, by America's having assisted so many 'former' Nazis to escape and come to America and to be paid now by the U.S. Government. After World War II, the top level of the U.S. power-structure became increasingly taken over by the military-industrial complex, America's Deep State, so that increasingly the U.S. Government is in a condition of "perpetual war for perpetual peace" – a warfare state and economy: fascism."[\[11\]](#)

“In addition to using at least 200 sites as “burn pits” where they burn hazardous explosives in the open air, the Pentagon also pays independent contractors to dispose of hazardous waste and to clean up toxic sites. The investigation noted that, in some cases, the Pentagon has even refused to cooperate with the EPA and let dangerous sites remain toxic wastelands, because it claimed it is “not responsible when some of those contractors commit fraud, improperly handle toxic material, or cut corners on cleanups.”

As The Free Thought Project reported, while Congress banned American industries from using “open burns” to dispose of hazardous waste in 1984, a study from ProPublica in July revealed that lawmakers granted the Pentagon and its contractors “a temporary reprieve from those rules to give engineers time to address the unique aspects of destroying explosive military waste. That exemption has remained in place ever since.”

The latest installment in the investigation looks at the Research Development Explosive (RDX), which was created by the U.S. in the early 1940s. In addition to being considered a critical component in defeating Germany in World War II, the white crystalline powder was then used to fuel carpet bombing in Korea and Vietnam.

“The Americans called the new formula RDX, and it transformed weapons overnight. RDX enabled the bazooka – the world’s first hand-held anti-tank rocket launcher – to pierce armor.

RDX was packed into 10,000-pound underwater bombs dropped by British airplanes to blow up German river dams and disrupt the country's hydropower in the critical Dambuster campaign. It was even surreptitiously soaked into firewood that would later explode in the furnaces of German locomotives."

At the time, more than 40 million pounds of RDX was produced each month at an industrial plant in rural Tennessee. The deadly, explosive powder was spread into the soil and later found in the area's drinking water aquifers. The study noted that while RDX was designated as "a possible human carcinogen" in 1990, the Pentagon has continued to manufacture it and to test-fire the weapons it is made with on U.S. soil.

The contamination has been found across the country, with residents in Salt Lake City, Utah, claiming that the food they grew with RDX-contaminated water caused cancer. RDX has also been found to have contaminated drinking water near Fort Jackson in Columbia, South Carolina, in 2013; nearly 150 miles away from the Army's manufacturing plant in Kingsport, Tennessee, in 2015; and around an old missile factory, which the Pentagon claimed was safe for the public, near Los Angeles, California, in 2017.

The Pentagon is the same government agency that claims it cannot account for more than $21 trillion from the last 20 years, and the latest discovery from ProPublica that more than 65 military installations across the country have been contaminated with a deadly chemical, is just another reminder that the Pentagon is not only killing innocent civilians in the Middle East-it is also poisoning innocent civilians in the United States, in the name of keeping Americans "safe."..."[\[12\]](#)

"The material in this program, as well as FTR #986, should be weighed against the back-ground of Cambridge Analytica, Mercer, Bannon and the extraordinary data mining done for Breitbart and the Trump machine by the AI mechanism employed for extracting that information.

Key to the success achieved by both Breitbart and YouTube "alt-right" personalities is networking. At Breitbart, the skillful, adroit Milo Yiannopoulos served as a point person for a coterie of white supremacists and anti-Semites while couching the views they espouse in a careful, rhetorically ambiguous manner deflective of overt criticism. At YouTube, regular personalities with their own shows and content host other, more overtly extremist guests and channel viewers to the more extreme sites through that exposure.

BuzzFeed has a long piece based on a cache of leaked emails that describe behind-the-scenes efforts at Breitbart to mainstream the "Alt Right" neo-Nazis. This story firms up analysis of Breitbart as a white nationalist publication run by neo-Nazis for the purpose of mainstreaming neo-Nazi ideals.

Those efforts primarily revolved around Milo Yiannopoulos, who is:

Tasked with reaching out to "Alt Right" figures.

Getting comments from them about what the "Alt Right" was all about.

Then, later getting feedback from them about the planned articles before they were published.

It was clearly a group effort. Those efforts included Andrew 'the weev' Auernheimer, Curtis Yarvin (the founder of the "Dark Enlightenment" movement), and Devin Saucier, a neo-Nazi Yiannopoulos describes as his best friend.

Of primary interest here is the cunning exercised by Yiannopoulos, Bannon et al in parsing just what they can get away with doing and what they must avoid. Auerenheimer, for example, was excluded a Yiannopoulos podcast after being vetted by Breitbart manag[e]ment.

The emails included back and forths between Yiannopoulos and Breitbart editors about whether or not the publication was getting too openly friendly with the Nazis, with Yiannopoulos being told at one point that it was fine to use a “shekels” joke but “you can’t even flirt with OKing gas chamber tweets.”

Other points of information include: Curtis Yarvin’s statement that he was “coaching” Peter Thiel on politics; How the two Yiannopoulos passwords found in the emails were “a password that began with the word Kristall”, and “LongKnives[-]1290,” references to Kristallnacht and the Night of the Long Knives.”

Noteworthy, also, is the financial power of the Mercer interests, who have successfully rattled legal sabers against media outlets who have tarred Yiannopoulos with the racist brush.

Alt-right YouTube hosts also employ networking, inviting ideologically extreme guests to participate on their programs, presenting views more inflammatory than those normally aired on the net[-]casts. The extremist guests then receive a significant bump-up in traffic from their appearances.”[\[13\]](#)

Whatisthe cacophony is the fast-pace of americas-Life in Canada-Mejico-USA that does not subscribe to penury and fast-pace coupled together w.o. coitus.

“Then there is the monitoring of the travel of Americans through a massive surveillance system of CCTV cameras which could be upgraded with facial recognition technology. In addition, the federal government has used drones on Americans, 13 police departments are using them and 30,000 drones are projected to be licensed in the United States in the next decade.

When we travel, our conversations will also be monitored as cities across the country are quietly installing microphone-enabled surveillance systems on public buses that would give them the ability to record and store private conversations. Street lights are being installed that can spy in some American cities. Cell towers and cell phones can track where your phone is. And, phone companies responded to at least 1.3 million law enforcement requests for cell phone locations in 2011. The government is pushing for "black boxes" being installed in cars to track people.

When Americans travel they go through often abusive and always degrading, invasive searches at airports, but the TSA is now moving beyond airports to trains and sports stadiums, as well as deploying mobile scanners to spy on people in many places. Related to this is expanding the geographic area for border searches to 100 miles away from the border. When the government conducts a border search it is not constrained by the Fourth Amendment.

And then there is the corporate side of the security state. Big companies are giving data to the NSA and other government agencies in return for special treatment. The NSA built a back door to all Windows software and the FBI wants a backdoor to all software. Companies are creating new products like bill boards that can watch you. And a recent patent application by Verizon would allow your television to watch you, track what you are doing, who you are with, what you're holding, and the mood you're in.

All of this is happening within the framework of law and congressional over-sight. But, as Thomas Drake says "Oversight has been co-opted and compromised, it is a kabuki dance. Secret surveillance is approved by secret courts. Compromised congressional oversight includes gag orders to silence elected representatives" so they cannot tell their constituents what is going on. "It really inverts the system of justice," he says." [\[14\]](#)

"Brian Becker: The change in momentum in Venezuela since the July 30 election for the National Constituent Assembly (ANC) has been remarkable, and we salute the leadership of the Bolivarian Revolution for this feat. This includes direct sanctions by the United States and other imperialist governments, economic warfare aimed at creating scarcity and inflation, media demonization, and a vicious campaign of fascist violence targeting supporters of the revolution and institutions associated with it.

In spite of all this, the Bolivarian Revolution has been able to seize the initiative by reenergizing its grassroots supporters with the Constituent Assembly. This broke the deadlock and dysfunction imposed by the opposition-controlled National Assembly. The overwhelming victory of the United Socialist Party-led forces in the regional elections is clear evidence of this. Of course, as the leaders of the revolutionary movement all say, there is much work that remains to be done. The bulk of the Venezuelan economy remains in the hands of the bourgeoisie, as a legacy of colonial underdevelopment the country still has a dependency on oil exports, the capitalist class retains a vast media apparatus to slander and distort the revolution and its leadership, counter-revolutionaries have the ability to openly organize. The ANC is a powerful tool to resolve these and many other dilemmas, and we will not waver in our support of the Bolivarian Revolution should it decide to move decisively against the forces that have proven time and again to have absolutely zero respect for the democratic will of the Venezuelan people.

ICP: Russia's alleged intervention to the US elections has sparked heated debates and reactions even without any solid evidence. Considering that, how does the government's agenda to intervene in Venezuela is perceived by the American public?

BB: Of course it is the height of absurdity for the U.S. government to complain about foreign interference in its elections. Unlike allegations of Russian intervention in the United States, U.S. intervention in Venezuela's elections is real beyond a shadow of a doubt. Through "democracy promotion"

*The U.S. electoral system is terribly flawed, but not because of supposed Russian hacking. Tens of millions of people are legally disenfranchised because of their citizen-ship status or prior criminal convictions. The president of the United States is chosen by the electoral college, a relic from the era of slavery which on occasion overturns the popular vote (as was the case with Trump's election). The Senate is among the least representative legislative bodies in the world. A complex of state and federal laws and regulations make it exceedingly difficult for parties other than the Democrats and Repu-blicans to compete in elections, or even get on the ballot in the first place. "The warrantless National Security Agency (NSA) electronic eavesdropping pro-gram known to only a handful of Bush administration officials by its code name, Stellar Wind, and by a few other Justice Department officials only as "The Program," routinely intercepted the communications and transactional data, including credit card usage, of journalists and public officials, according to sources familiar with the program.

The Stellar Wind program was considered so illegal by the Justice Department and FBI agents who knew about it, there was a belief that then-Attorney General John Ashcroft would be indicted for allowing the interception program to operate. Known also as the "Terrorist Surveillance Program," the warrantless wiretapping was authorized by President George W. Bush in the wake of 9/11 and had to be recertified every 45 days. In March 2004, Deputy Attorney General James Comey, upon the determination of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel, decid-ed that certification would not occur because the program was deemed illegal.

After Comey became acting attorney general when Ashcroft went to George Washington University hospital suffering from acute pancreatitis, there was a now infamous scene of White House

Chief of Staff Andrew Card and White House Counsel Alberto Gonzales demanding that a barely conscious Ashcroft recertify "The Program." Comey, with Ashcroft's wife by the bedside of her husband, were present as Card and Gonzales demanded that Ashcroft recertify the surveillance program. Ashcroft said Comey was the attorney general. The min-rebellion within the top echelons of the Bush administration resulted in the White House reauthorizing the illegal Stellar Wind without the concurrence of the Department of Justice. Bush called his illegal surveillance program, using NSA to spy on innocent Americans, the "crown jewels of national security."

WMR has also learned that the ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, John Conyers, was, after the 2004 Ashcroft hospital scene, informed of the illegal wiretap program. Conyers took no action when informed by a contact within the Justice Department and replied in an email to the contact, "Whistle-blowers don't fare very well."[\[16\]](#)

"Conyers also refused to take any action when NSA employees like Russell Tice, familiar with the illegal NSA program, validated the information about "The Prog-ram" that was coming from within the Justice Department. Congress, including then-Senator Barack Obama, then gave telecommunications companies like AT&T and Verizon, which were cooperating in the illegal NSA surveillance program by granting the firms immunity from prosecution. These telecommunications firms maintained a number of "secret rooms" at their major switching centers that allowed NSA to conduct illegal surveillance on Americans."[\[17\]](#)

This demises the judicial system of the US-supreme court by their not acting or responding in solidarity w the laws immediately.

That nano-Bacteria as nano-Technology plus bases and Invasions will continue is an imbalance to maintain chaos as disorder for fruitlessly wasting billions-$ on bombs-bomb-ings and deaths of millions people around the world—last count was 20-millionpeople killed by the rogue-Empire, and about-the-same displaced. Shamefully, negatively, and abrogating principles-of-and-for-tRaditions, for language and for laws w subsequence to fairness, et al-ski. Time for a revolution? Do we not think.

“WMR has also learned that one of the main architects of the Stellar Wind program was Vice President Dick Cheney’s then-chief counsel David Addington. Cheney and Addington decided to keep a number of details of the super-classified Stellar Wind program secret from the Congress. What we were told is that "Cheney did not view Congress as a co-equal branch" of the executive. The so-called "unitary executive," which has powers greater than the legislative and judicial branches in violation of the U.S. Constitution, was an idea that was being pushed by Addington and other officials within the Bush White House. WMR has also discovered that Addington once joked about "blowing up the FISA Court."

Sources have also told WMR that there was a "predisposition" by the Bush White House to implementing Stellar Wind prior to 9/11. Cheney was also particularly fond of using NSA to illegally spy on Americans. The Stellar Wind program was so classified that Comey's predecessor as deputy attorney general, Larry Thompson, was never "read into" the special access program that minimally required a Top Secret/ Special Compartmented Information (TS/SCI) security clearance along with clearance to the Stellar Wind program.

WMR has learned from informed sources familiar with Stellar Wind that it was used to create a Richard Nixon-style "enemies list" and that one of the victims of the surveillance of this transactional data and communications traffic was New York's then-Governor Eliot Spitzer. Spitzer's Internet web page visits, e-mails, credit card transactions, and phone calls were all used by the Bush administration to discover his activities with a New York escort service and bring about his humiliation and resignation from office.

The NSA, when it learned something juicy about a public official like Spitzer, would scrub the information of all "intelligence sources and methods" information, including the involvement of companies like AT&T and Verizon, and provide it to Justice Department prosecutors for action or White House political operatives for a political sting operation targeting the individual eavesdropped upon.

There is also reason to believe that Stellar Wind was used to eavesdrop on Illinois Democratic Governor Rod Blagojevich, New Mexico Democratic Governor Bill Richardson, New Jersey Democratic Governor Jon Corzine, former North Carolina Democratic Senator and presidential candidate John Edwards, and then-Illinois Democratic Senator and current President Barack Obama to “dig up” political dirt by the Bush-Cheney White House.” [\[19\]](#)

Amongst these prejudicial ways are the weigh-ins that tyranny results in harm to forward-Progress of the people’s-Will. A still born tyranny one might state, is irresolution for police-state continuations w.o. revolution, when in reality this hyper-Irresoluteness to lawful abidance does the opposite. One does not give credence that goerges-Enron nor bully-boy Clyneton did that for revolutionizing, but for “wealth ‘n monetary gain”. Check- ing records, bully-Boy got windfalls of money from allowing drugs into Arkansas under his pre-Presidential election of governorship. That Mena Airport affair involved gHW Bushwhacky as well—never allow “a ex-Cias officer exec become president” Eisenhower did warn us before the US-military. The one statement I do allude was at least parsimony to his noon-Military political dispensation, not the “warm-you of military-Industrial complex” after the fact (circa 1957) that the nuclear-Molecular was already discursive about releasing data on NSDU-238 from 1943’s appended sourcing date.

Discordantly, the fanatic-penataGooons don’t allow reporting budget reports and constraints on spending, as well as what the cost of "de-Contaminations of both NSDU-238 and chem-tRails' from theirs is egregiousness expenditures for future, such as H.A.A.R.P. and "Gravity Control Propulsion Vehicle" or anti-gRavity saucers (known as anti-gRavity machines) renown and known-for-decades of practical applications. Plus, the US-military has no countermanding procedures and more than acts as totality of removing data for their own utility of illegalities continuing as though wars-Warring not foreign-Diplomacy relations had nothing to dwell upon w laws and procedures of E.U. and United Nations—for fact.

"Newsweek has a very interesting story on Thomas M. Tamm, the former Justice Department lawyer who was a source for New York Times reporters Eric Lichtblau and James Risen, who broke the warrantless wiretapping story three years ago yes-terday.

The dimension of the story most interesting to me is the failure of congressional oversight to perform its role. Uneasy with what his Justice Department colleagues called 'the program' and assumed to be illegal, Tamm had contacted a friend of his who worked for the Senate Judiciary Committee. But Sandra Wilkinson "shut down their conversation."

Among derelictions of duty, this one stands out. It is the job of the legislative branch to oversee the executive. Sandra Wilkinson, her Judiciary Committee colle-agues, and her boss (my cursory checking hasn't revealed who that was) failed to pursue allegations of illegality in the Justice Department. They will live out their lives with the quiet infamy of gutlessness.

Thankfully, we have a watchdog press and a protective First Amendment. Oth-erwise, 'the program' might even now be metastisizing into a greater threat to our liberties. As it is, the rule of law in the United States has taken a hit, the Congress sickeningly ratified the illegal wiretapping program, and Americans have gotten a refresher course on why not to trust the government of the country they love.”[\[20\]](#)

Egregious vituperations forwarding more lies, deceptions, intel-Gence ‘deep-State’. You and I know that wars intend to kill “civilians” as not merely egregious-state of “evil-Empire” but of continuing thru-out the past 70-years w masse` murder expropriations, as well as deep-State, fecundry.

“James Risen has broken story after story on the abuses of power of the Bush administration.

From warrantless wiretapping to secret financial data mining to the CIA's rogue operations, he has shown again and again that the executive branch has dangerously overreached, repudiated checks and balances on its power, and maintained secrecy even with its allies in Congress. In no small part thanks to Risen and State of War, the "secret history" of the Bush years has now come partially into view.

In a new epilogue for the paperback edition, Risen describes the two-front war that President Bush is now fighting: at home against Congress and the Supreme Court, as his administration is increasingly reined in from its abuses; and in the Middle East, where George W. Bush's great gamble to bring a democratic revolution is failing radically. We must learn the lessons of Risen's history now, before it is too late." [\[21\]](#)

The round was apparently displayed at the IDEX arms fair in the United Arab Emirates. The photo shows a model of this round, apparently displayed at IDEX the following year.

The round is said to be able to penetrate over 550mm of rolled homogeneous armour. It apparently shares design features with Chinese tungsten rounds produced by Norinco, which are also produced under license in Pakistan.

In 1998 it was reported in the Pakistani press that large numbers of DU rounds had been imported from China. It may well be the case that this included 120mm rounds.”[\[22\]](#)

“The Current State of Affairs

At present time, Israel’s top political leadership is in the state of outright hysteria regarding Lebanese Hezbollah.

Senior Israeli officials have repeatedly claimed that Israel will not allow Hezbollah and Iran to concentrate its forces in border areas and to expand their influence in the region, particularly in Syria and Lebanon.

The already difficult situation in southern Lebanon and Syria was further complicated by the series of events, which contributed to the growing tensions in the region in November and early December. It started with a resignation of Lebanese Prime Minister Saad al-Hariri announced from Saudi Arabia on November 7, continued with Saudi accusations of military aggression through missile supplies to Yemen against Iran and rose to a new level on December 6 when US President Donald Trump recognized Jerusalem as Israel's capital sparking further escalation.

Some experts also said Israel, Saudi Arabia and the US are conspiring to start a new war in the region. In this light, "The Light of Dagan", a major military exercise named in honour of the former Director of Foreign Intelligence Service of Israel, Mossad, Meir Dagan, was described as a part of the preparations for armed aggression against Lebanon.

The exercise lasted eleven days, from 4 to 14 September 2017, and involved tens of thousands of troops from all branches of service.

The exercise legend posited that terrorists attacked the village of Shavey Zion, fifteen kilometers from the Lebanese border and, together with hundreds of Hez-bollah fighters from the Radwan units, carried out the invasion in the north, captured civilians and occupied the local synagogue. Their ultimate goal was to plant Hez-bollah flag of the movement on Israeli soil and send a photo to Secretary General Hassan Nasrallah. In response, Israel carried out the evacuation of civilians, then units of the IDF conducted a large-scale operation in southern Lebanon, which was carried out in three stages. The first stage was defensive, including a counter-attack and the deployment of additional units to counter the Hezbollah movements. The second stage consisted of launching an assault on southern Lebanon. The third phase pushed Hezbollah forces back into Lebanon. The exercises were held in southern Galilee to the south from Highway 85 Akko-Carmiel. The goal of the exercises was the full capitulation of the Hezbollah movement, "depriving them of their ability and willingness to resist". According to the IDF command, the IDF excelled at these tasks.

The IDF Today

Currently the IDF in the regional scale is a formidable force with the budget of 15.9 bn USD.

According to the yearbook Military Balance 2017, IDF numbers 176 thousand service[-]members, of which 133 thousand are in the Army, 34 thousand in the Air Force, 9.5 thousand in the Navy. In addition, there are 465 thousand troops in reserve. The border police (MAGAV) may provide 8000 troops to assist the military." [\[23\]](#)

What the je-Average army looks like in Japan may be different, as they are no longer anti-Military of their own i.e. not always US-military personnel any longer. The middle-East has been going thru this same antipathy since 1905. The colonialist economic entreaty for coRpoRate banking was the "sleaze effect" long before then, and thus the opportunity was provided to offer more insecurity to peoples not already nations, but aristocrats not already fascist in governmental controls. Israel's zionists have fit that bill to provide "zionism" in late 1930's in Germany as well as offering to allot European-Nations, not necessarily "colonialist". They got the foreign-Affairs into the realm of people-Democracy because the we-People were going into all democratizing directions, not into zionism, but socialism, not necessarily communism. The anointment of communism in 1948 Israel, bought zionism into furtive positions of control of the Israelites, who are not all Jews, nor all zionists, but the surrounding states of aRabs were not all one religion as some were christian and not all arabs nor Palestine people were semites, altho they're moreso than Israelites and IDF assuredly.

The US-foreign policy is immorally making no headway (some people state the truths) while adding chaos-Theory as pertinent to maintaining arms and armaments mili-tary consortiums. Confusion from usages of the nuclear-Molecular weapon, NSDU-238 has been push-ed to the wayside, not even Jeremy Corbin discusses clean-ups for Iraq and Yugoslavia, and Libya, and Afghanistan in order to get elected. Egregiousness and apologist entreaty continues alongside the "chaos-Theory rhetorical" of soooo many states finally coming into the Radionuclides contaminations "lack-of-discussions".

peace-Remnants for nuclear-Disarmament

There once was a way home, that was to leave the planet alone. We did not have neurotic people then {sic: my capital letters in mid-words] but what has happened too often people allowing themselves to mince their wordages and not utilize part of vocabulary training, by reading—and, in conversations. The practice may be wholly a professional in bearings, but baring phonetics utility management or professionals failed that accord. Is this pertinent to English spoken language? Probably! Since 1966, at college and at University, the topics of Psychology pertained to societal-Sickness –sleaze of the Oligarchic-State. Mainly, many people warned one another of the demise, that of Radionuclides onslaught imparticular to those of us w.i. the anti-Nuclearist wings of anti-War, knew and discussed. Even then, however, NSDU-238 was a disregarded feature, one of “could-not-happen-here”. I am not one to “disregard” any factorable obsession by turn-of. As a boomer I was one of those on the hipstir-wing. Literally we were tuned-In to disregard as ipsofacto-Relatible chime but don't rhyme.

Sleaze if you please, but sleaze not if you Do Not Please! I did not disregard my peers, because I knew that plutocracy was more rampant—evidently— than my peers expected any pronouncements to be or to become regarding the propaganda-state of capitalism is soooo prissy. Why was poverty so necessary to spout rhetoric and then go to war 10,000 miles away and not Weld. the we-Boomers wee the tour du force of putting shackles on the new-Rome, as the military grotesqueness was ameliorized into societal-Normatives. This propaganda was truly as sleaze. The positive side was that pertains was that of human-Animal, that we Evluted to the points where our brains were better w hand-eye co-ordination as well as both sides the brain. This was not apparent, and many drop-outs had a time of learning from their peers. Peer-linkage to the we-Boomers was a pronounced acceptance, a renown one. The dropouts had a take on that premise but could not develop a conceptual-Basis. The reactionary-Right were diggers and Rollingstone writers & readers, to drop-outs and plain-ole druggie-useless. What comes to Life is not always fruition, or what goes around comes around. However, the rightwing gOPS also stated that fact since, 1969 as they started a reactionary backlash, but seemingly against anything-Bop.

The Ecology movement was what we-Boomers founded, in 1969, but we had lost too many bohemians as liaisons by then. We were predicated upon cleaning-UP all Radionuclides sites, but the reactionism to that premise was because ACP (american communist party) associates were in our midst. The at-odds was Bourgeois reactionism, as I defined w the other co-leader of our Revolution-Now affinity group. Who was against too much of one-Factor, we knew that to be Establishment, while that of science was remiss, to them, not merely to us. This antithetical encapsulated, and our negations were not debased and negative outputs not missing. Thus, the we-Boomers knew that "reactionaryism" was the workout of the FBI's-COINTELPRO was they guise, and utility, but had not the secretized word. NSDU-238 was on the front burner for us, too briefly, because we were not a socialist party w parity, altho we knew the parity forward and rising! Reactionism was not reactionaryism.

"Characteristics of the battlefield contaminant:

- □ Ceramic uranium is produced by the ballistic pulverisation and thermal aerosolisation of uranium alloyed and uranium ballast ordnance by the detonation of high explosives and the energy of kinetic impacts.

- □ Physical and chemical form of ceramic uranium: □ □ U3O8, UO2, UO3 uranium oxides, mixed alloy compound oxides, and slow- □ oxidising uranium metal particulate. □ □ Aerosols of uranium-rich dust are comprised of a high fraction of ultra-fine, □ respirable aerosols: < 0.1 micron (particle diameter).
- □ Lung retention of ceramic uranium: Official standard of nuclear regulators is a clearance rate of a total of 10% of the inhaled lung burden absorbed into the blood over the lifetime.
- □ Blood circulatory system retention: For the fraction that reaches the blood, the official position is that it takes 3 years to 10,000 days for blood circulated ceramic uranium to be cleared from the body.
- □ Whole-body retention in research literature: Inhaled ceramic uranium remains in body for a lifetime; found in lungs, bones and target organs during autopsies.
- □ Health risk classification category of ceramic uranium: Chemical, heavy metal toxin and pervasive, systemic radiological toxin.

□ Research findings of deleterious health effects of ceramic uranium/alpha particle emitters: Lymphatic and lung cancer; kidney damage; genetic damage to off-spring; classed by International Agency for Research of Cancer (IARC) as a carcinogen.

Characteristics of the alleged, new generation of composite uranium, high explosive weapons:

- □ Composite weapons combining Non-Depleted Uranium and High Explosives.
- □ Suspected ordnance categories: Deeply buried hardened target – bunker busters; seismic shock weapons (tectonic disrupters); surface hardened-target penetrators including special classes of munitions such as shaped-charges and self-forging armour and bunker defeat ordnance; wide-area denial, fragmentation bombs; and, thermobaric bombs.

- □ Mass range estimates: 100's to 1,000's of pounds of uranium per weapon, depending on type.
- □ Weight of a DU kinetic energy penetrator: <1/2 to ~12 pounds for those warheads admitted to by Defense departments.
- □ % DU kinetic energy penetrator (DU-KEP) aerosolising upon impact with target: 20% to 80% (increases with exposure to fire).
- □ % NDU aerosolising upon detonation of composite, uranium-high explosive weapons: up to 100%; except for fragmentation and area-denial ordnance.
- □ High explosives in NDU-HEO ordnance: 100's to 1000's of pounds per weapon.
- □ High explosives in DU kinetic energy penetrators: None
- □ Terminal ballistics: Heat – 5000° to 8000° C; Pressures – detonation front travels at 21,000 mph; Uranium explodes in contact with CO<sub>2</sub> (a product of chemical explosive blasts); Impact velocities – over 1.5 Km/second, depending on function, weapons' design and delivery system.
- □ Aerosol production: “Going-in factors” combine to instantaneously “phase-shift” the uranium and convert it to a plasma, ionising and electrostatically charging the by-products, lofting and dispersing the contaminant as a colloid and uranium-rich compounds. Up to 100% of material aerosolised along with target materials, creating a wide size-range of pure uranium respirable particles along with compounds and agglomerates of uranium-rich dust and metallic uranium fines.
- □ Dispersal of aerosols: Colloidally suspended aerosols behave as a gas, adhering to fluid-dynamic principles. The contaminant will be deposited at ground-zero and at decreasing densities along the particle deposition pathway of the weapons' ballistic plume. The aerosols can travel 1,000's of kilometres and 10's of 1000's of feet vertically – classified as a mesospheric contaminant.

–note: if these characteristics had been presented from the evaluations on and from the new-Rome's "proving-Grounds" such as Starmet, Indiana Proving Ground near Madison IN—where I protested 3-times and nearby 6-7 times, the NSDU-238 significancies in killing "civilians" by the 100,000's may never have transpired. However, transpire the use and the abuse "civilians" deaths and the LINGERING AFFECTS FROM USAGES did happen. These do constitute Crimes Against Humanity, and my indignation as to why they think, i am eating from their dumb-fool laps. Hardly. "R"

"The old Washington adage that the cover-up is worse than the crime may not apply when it comes to the revelations this week that the Central Intelligence Agency interfered with a Senate torture investigation. It's not that the cover-up isn't serious. It is extremely serious—as Senator Dianne Feinstein said, the CIA may have violated the separation of powers, the Fourth Amendment, and a prohibition on spying inside the United States. It's just that in this case, the underlying crimes are still worse: the dispute arises because the Senate Intelligence Committee, which Feinstein chairs, has written an as-yet-secret 6,300 page report on the CIA's use of torture and disappearance—among the gravest crimes the world recognizes—against al-Qaeda suspects in the "war on terror."

By Senator Feinstein's account, the CIA has directly and repeatedly interfered with the committee's investigation: it conducted covert unauthorized searches of the computers assigned to the Senate committee for its review of CIA files, and it secretly removed potentially incriminating documents from the computers the committee was using. That's the stuff that often leads to resignations, independent counsels, and criminal charges; indeed, the CIA's own Inspector General has referred the CIA's conduct to the Justice Department for a potential criminal investigation.

But the crime that we must never lose sight of is the conduct that led to the investigation in the first place. To recall: in 2002, shortly after the 9/11 attacks, the Bush administration authorized the CIA to establish a series of secret prisons, or "black sites," into which it disappeared "high-value" al-Qaeda suspects, often for years at a time, without any public acknowledgment, without charges, and cut off from any access to the outside world. The CIA was further authorized to use a range of coercive tactics—borrowed from those used by the Chinese to torture American soldiers during the Korean War—to try to break the suspects' will. These included depriving suspects of sleep for up to ten days, slamming them against walls, forcing them into painful stress positions, and water-boarding them.

The program was approved by President Bush himself, as well as Vice-President Dick Cheney, National Security Adviser Condoleezza Rice, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of State Colin Powell, Attorney General John Ashcroft, and CIA Director George Tenet. John Yoo and Jay Bybee, Justice Department lawyers, wrote memos to whitewash the program. These acts were war crimes under the laws of war and grave human rights abuses. Yet no one has yet been held accountable for any of them. And the investigation by the Senate Intelligence Committee is until now the only comprehensive effort to review the extensive classified CIA records about the program.

Even before the investigation began, the CIA appears to have been aware that its interrogation practices might not withstand scrutiny. The intelligence committee's investigation was itself sparked by a CIA agent's destruction of ninety-two videotapes of the agency's actual interrogations. According to accounts by former CIA officials, twelve of the tapes documented the use of "enhanced interrogation techniques," including water-boarding. One tape showed al-Qaeda suspect Abu Zubaydah, apparently screaming and vomiting."

“Subject: The use of depleted uranium for military purposes

Depleted uranium (DU) is a chemically toxic and radioactive by-product of the uranium enrichment process whose radioactivity increases over time. It is used by a number of states in armour piercing munitions for use in tanks, armoured vehicles and aircraft. Six states are known to produce these weapons, and it is thought that around 20 currently possess them in their stockpiles. DU munitions combust, generating a fume of uranium oxide particles that present an inhalational hazard to civilians and military personnel. Munitions that miss their target can contaminate soils and groundwater. Significant quantities of DU munitions have been used in Iraq and the Balkans by the US and the UK. There are ongoing concerns over its potential use in Afghanistan. DU-contaminated vehicles pose significant risks to scrap metal collectors and children who often play on them. DU munitions have been deployed in spite of considerable data gaps in DU's environmental behaviour, chemical and radiation hazards, the level of contamination likely to be created in different scenarios and, crucially, the extent to which civilian populations may be exposed to DU residue. Parliament has consistently questioned and opposed the use of DU munitions for more than a decade. Concern over the use of DU munitions has been growing at the United Nations General Assembly, where a fifth resolution on the topic will be tabled in October 2014. In some areas of Iraq, childhood cancers and severe congenital birth defects have increased exponentially, up to the point where women no longer want to have children. In consideration of the issues raised above, could the Commission specify:

1. what action has been taken to date to promote restrictions and/or prohibitions on the use of DU munitions among Member States and to demonstrate leadership on this issue internationally?
2. what efforts have been undertaken to develop a common EU position in favour of the prohibition of the use of DU munitions?
3. what assistance the EU is able to provide to help the Iraqi Government to better manage the legacy of DU in its country?

4. DU is just one of many hazardous substances used in conventional munitions that have the potential to impact on civilian health. In light of the EU's position as a leader on chemicals regulation, will the Commission support research into the impact of these toxic remnants on civilians?"

The question asks what the EU has been doing to encourage member states to respect the views of the EP, which has repeatedly called for a global moratorium on DU and work towards a ban. It also asks the EU to better support Iraq in dealing with the legacy of DU and for it to take a lead on the increased regulation of military toxics. The heinousness of using NSDU-238 is two-Fold. One, the actual term is what I use, as the encapsulation is most apparent to the actual-Dimensionality of 60% fissile. The other is that others must jump-In as the disparagement is also that the IMperialism cause "neurotic-Conditionalism" in the first place, whether as a backlash from killing civilians, from totally contaminating the DNA's of unborn fetuses to radionuclides-contaminating neighboring nations-States at a later non-propitious space-Time. The main fact is nuclear-Radiation is illegal, whether in NSDU-238 microns and various associated "extract-Ru:238" or the overtures of adding high level ur-235 and enriched ur-236 or plainly recombinant "dirty-Radionuclides: uranium". Having a sick-Neurotic society would not be worse than a disparaged gun-toting society but either manner, the fanaticism of Pentagons-Brass has overstepped by usages of what they continue to covet to cover-UP: NSDU-238. "...there is a point that I think is entirely missing from the debates around intervention in Libya, Syria, or anywhere else. Your point above that NATO's massive bombing campaign could not have possibly been carried out without widespread death and destruction is well taken. But it deserves to be taken a step further. US munitions are coated with what the military euphemistically refers to as 'depleted uranium.' Only it is not 'depleted.' It will continue to emit radiation that will wreak havoc on the lives and health of millions of Libyans of all political stripes for many, many years into the future. It will, no doubt, like all assaults on public health, take it's greatest toll on the most oppressed, who have the least access

"Officials at the US Defense Department have requested extra funding for a new fleet of submarines and unmanned underwater vehicles and surveillance drones, according to newly unveiled budget documents.

The Pentagon's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) plans to double its current spending from $14.9 million to $29.9 million for the Hydra program. When Pentagon designers debuted the Hydra program they unveiled a large, mothership-like craft capable of moving through the water and deploying a number of smaller surveillance drones.

The budget released last week also shows that DARPA is seeking a 59-percent increase from $11.9 million to $19 million for the Upward Falling Payloads program, with the intention of developing "forward-deployed (drones) that can provide non-lethal effects or situational awareness over large maritime areas," as quoted by Ray Locker of USA Today.

One of the motivating factors behind the Upward Falling Payloads program is the need to sidestep the costly and time consuming process of transporting distributed technology devices to a specific area. Instead, the Navy would plant those devices in designated areas throughout the ocean and access them by remote during times of need."

Those prevaricated propaganda public-relations, best.

The best news is yet radio and “socialist-Websites” as there are at least six of those and each is as worthy as the other! Mr. Cirincirone does not discuss, protecting he planet, from intersteallar space nor NSDU-238, because he was delinquent and in-service to the current admin! What nonsense is that?

NSDU-238, Reshape the Arab World, new-Rome's NWO

Antipathy is oftentimes a social relegation and not consequence, because fear is also predicated on not being 'defended'. NSDU-238 is the insurance of the thermo-Nuclears weapon-building programs. However, NSDU-238 was so fearsome that military, War-dept propagandists in 1944-45 may have anticipated no proclivities of secrecy were concomitant to denigration of "non-Use" a power-Elitist disposition—to say the least. Soooo, logic would have that rhetoric aside the castigations of delinquency were non-use and logic could be more formidable than extrapolating for a public dissemination, what that "consequence would look like". Thereupon, no dissemination but cover-Up was radicalizing, an aggrandizement of greater proportionments rather than apportioning, those very premises. I learned this as a frosh and then as sophomore in san-fRan region 1960-1961 high-school.

NSDU-238 is a byproduct of "re-enrichment process of plutonium-239 from NPP's usages" as well as necessary for making "armor and ballast" (previously mentioned & defined). The atoms and molecules which remains a mixture of Radionuclides until Reprocessed when ur-235 is take-out as well as pu-239, is as hot as any and all uranium, because Uranium is Radiologic. The fecund sidelight, that anybody can do this "reprocessing" is nota complete picture, given that nuclear-Weapons could not be useful if "graphite-Reactors" were not utilized, because they produce pu-238. Thus, if billions-dollars is utilized, is not mentioned, altho the "anybody is" then making plutonium is as similar as making Radionuclides "hazards of molecules that might escape" and be suspended as UN-controllable, which is what NSDU-238 microns do. Justice is not egregiousness, and we-People need "Radionuclides measurements" on any and all transport and disseminations of Down-winding, such as Daiichi's contents spewing from 11 Mar 2011. "R"

"Uranium Contamination of Afghanistan"

Radiological studies' results, May 2003: Operation Enduring Freedom & Afghanistan

Uranium Medical Research Centre

- UMRC's recent findings, released May 2003, reveal a wider scope of human and environmental contamination in Afghan civilians, corroborating the November 2002 Jalalabad findings.
- New bioassay studies identify uranium internal contamination in Spin Gar (Tora Bora) area and the City of Kabul, up to 200 X's the Reference Level of the unexposed population.
- Analyses of soils and debris collected inside OEF bomb-craters and target sites have uranium values 3 X's to 6 X's normal. Surface soils surrounding the bombsites and downwind from ground-zero are elevated close to 3 X's Reference Levels.
- Surface water, rice fields and catchments adjacent to and surrounding the bombsites have high values of uranium, up to 27 X's normal.
- Biological, hydrological and geological specimens' radiological measurements and their spatial arrangement point to Operation Enduring Freedom's ordnance as the origin of the contamination.
- Summaries of the recent findings are accompanied by a discussion of uranium weapons and their effects on the people of Afghanistan. www.UMRC.net ..."

One other point the pdf makes that is most intriguing is that NDU is even closer to definition of what I've called NSDU-238, which is acronym for 'not-so-depleted ur-238' is this context from same document following: "R"

"Battlefield uranium" refers to the physical and chemical form and manner of presentation of the by-products of DU and non-depleted uranium munitions aerosolised and oxidised in military applications. "Non-depleted uranium" (NDU), introduced in earlier UMRC reports, is coined to describe a particular class of artificial uranium. It represents uranium found at a specific point in the uranium processing, nuclear fuels and weapons' metallurgical processing cycle. NDU is a blend of "virgin uranium" (pure, unadulterated uranium from the mill) combined with recycled spent fuel and reactor by-products, mixed at the front-end of the cycle and extracted just prior to being (re)processed in the enrichment facilities. Non-depleted uranium is radioactively and physically different from depleted uranium – and is not correctly represented by such terms as "pure milled uranium", "natural uranium" or "un-depleted uranium". Of interest to pinpointing the source of the uranium, it is noteworthy that the US industrial metallurgical standard set by the American Society for Testing of Material's classifies a concoction of pure milled, virgin uranium and recycled spent fuel as "commercial natural uranium" (See: www.ASTM.org). The permissiveness of this metallurgical standard is no less insidious, than an earlier exposed practice of alloying pure DU metal feedstock with 0.75% titanium and then calling the ordnance "titanium penetrators"."

AND

What the International response is going to be amounts to the itinerary of "globalization & IMF" not rather he we-People who ought support change from w.i . the United Nations being so obsolete as they are too perfunctorily under-the-thumb of Euro and new-Rome plutocrats. The use of NSDU-238 was the pronouncement by one-Party system Oligarchs led by gHW Bushwhacky in 1990, as his admin and himself advocated an NW0.

The INvasions of Iraq, middle-East, then Afghanistan, south-west asia, were egregious and a 'total' misnomers to polite "diplomacy" or more to the point IMperialist and non-Diplomacy. Today in Iraq, the report that 8,000 persons were bombed, murdered, blasted, and further decimations to an economy already strangulated by IMperialist INvasions, corresponds to the continuance of sovereignty-Disregard, why the plutocrats maintain egregiousness in face of laws, and therefore find IMPunity the better method of an ipsofacto-Defense—or, basically no-Defense is best swarthy method of madness for capitalist gains.

"..."The people want the downfall of the regime!" The images streaming out from Tunis to Cairo, Saana to Bahrain, are of Arab peoples on their feet once again. On 14 January, as chanting crowds converged on the ministry of interior, Tunisia's President Ben Ali and his family fled to Saudi Arabia. On 11 February the national uprising in Egypt toppled the dictatorship of Hosni Mubarak as mass rebellion erupted in Libya and the Yemen.

In occupied Iraq, demonstrators protested against the corruption of the Maliki regime and, more recently, against the presence of US troops and bases. Jordan was shaken by nationwide strikes and tribal rebellion. Protests in Bahrain spiralled into calls for the overthrow of the monarchy, an event that scared the neighbouring Saudi kleptocrats and their western patrons, who can't conceive of an Arabia without sultans. Even as I write, the corrupt and brutal Ba'athist outfit in Syria, under siege by its own people, is struggling for its life.

... dual determinants of the uprisings were both economic – with mass unemployment, rising prices, scarcity of essential commodities – and political: cronyism, corruption, repression, torture.

...Here one has to say that whatever the final outcome, the Libyan people have lost. The country will either be partitioned into a Gaddafi state and a squalid pro-west protectorate led by selected businessmen, or the west will take out Gaddafi and control the whole of Libya and its huge oil reserves. This display of affection for “democracy” does not extend elsewhere in the region.

...In Yemen, the despot has killed hundreds of citizens but the army has split, and Americans and Saudis are trying desperately to stitch together a new coalition (as in Egypt) – but the mass movement is resisting any deals with the incumbent.

The US has to contend with an altered political environment in the Arab world. It is too soon to predict the final outcome, except to say it is not over yet.”

Why not speak-out and help others ‘socially’ while this helps maintain “democracy” as others may protest and you may also enjoin to demonstrate peacefully, but w.o. chauvinist “police-state” diabolical, militarized egregious over-excessiveness? Weld. the violence of police is the new-Rome—and, they are extremely cRonyist and egregious, too! Point of statist new-Rome specifically is Haiti, and the IMPunity against the we-

People there by the bully-Clyneton admin and since and before those egregious-times. [Haiti visit is one of my website 'sToRiEs'] Being a Caribbean Island and geographically close, but not as large as Cuba, one should be surprised by the State Dept's lacking w alacrity to maintain neighborly-closeness, that instead the agency has floundered w laxity is specific w IMperialism. Blotto. Speaking of agency the CIAs are about there always, like a study group, and I met some black-Ops practicing for what transpired in 1996, while there in 1977. The "oops" prescience is that removals and geographic "morphics" to timing are planned in advance, to apprise a surety that egregious is done for Elitist sacrileges.

One must assuredly see that poverty is not fRee. Period. "R"

"Just over a year after this pivotal meeting of the three Western states in Canada, the democratic government in Haiti was overthrown, President Aristide had been kidnapped and exiled to the Central Afrikan Republic, hundreds of Fanmi Lavalas's (FL) supporters killed, there was immediate occupation of Haiti by 2,000 Western troops (latter replaced by the United Nations' military intervention), repression against grassroots organizations, filling of the jails with political prisoners and abandonment of the FL government's investment in education, job creation, healthcare, public services and preoccupation with increasing the minimum wage. [4] The anti-democratic assault on the labouring classes in Haiti has resulted in the banning of the Fanmi Lavalas party from serving as an electoral instrument of the people as well as the execution of initiatives by elite forces to co-opt opportunistic elements within this political organization. [5] Charlie Hinton, an organizer with the Haiti Action committee, has documented the different ways that the current Michel

Martelly regime in Haiti is pursuing a path toward dictatorship. [6] People of good conscience across the world, especially those in the Americas, should develop or strengthen their ties of solidarity with popular organizations within Haiti's working-class and peasantry. "It is only through people-to-people solidarity based on mutual respect and principled collaboration that Haiti will rid itself of the United Nations' (MINUSTAH) occupation force [7]; force France to repay Haiti the ransom of 90 million gold francs (over $23 billion today) that was extracted from the latter as the price for diplomatic recognition and freedom from the threat of re-enslavement [8]; end the cycle of Western military interventions, coups and/or propping up of anti-democratic, anti-people regimes [9]; and put an end to the local elite's and foreign capital's exploitation of the people. [10] Based on Haiti's contribution to humanity, it should hold a special place in the internationalist programmes of progressive forces across the world." "The enslaved Afrikans in Haiti were the only people to have successfully overthrown a system of slavery in the annals of history."

The peace-Proprietorship by Aristide, was not recalcitrance but advancement for the people, who yet need medicine, Medicare and an economy not posited by the IMF and new-Rome's IMperialism for aggrandising the world's freely elected officials. May the new-Rome pay reparations for the chalice-cup that his repeatedly failed those afro-Carribeano's as the military-Hegemony was too busy murdering millions civilians and leaving a laminated-Legacy of NSDU-238 usages, altho here CIAs for IMPunity was acceptable, where violence was yet instilled instead, non-Violence. "R"

"Fanmi Lavalas was the political organization used by President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to win the presidency on two occasions (both times unseated by a coup). It can lay claim to the series of economic, social and physical infrastructure programmes that benefitted the peasantry and the working-class during the Aristide administrations. [19] Irrespective of how we might feel about elections, if a progressive and popular Haitian organization is deliberately and deviously barred from participating or Fanmi Lavalas is seen by large segments of Haitians as representative and reflective of them [20], as allies we ought to stand in principled solidarity with the self-determined goals of the people. The abolitionist, former enslaved African, feminist and statesman Frederick Douglass had this to say about Haiti's role in promoting 'universal human liberty' and it serves as a reminder of our debt of gratitude and obligation to its people: "In just vindication of Haiti, I can go one step further. I can speak of her, not only words of admiration, but words of gratitude as well. She has grandly served the cause of universal human liberty."

We have an anti-imperialist obligation to the people of Haiti
